BLACK FATHERS SERIES

Absentee fathers” only seem to come in one color: Black. Though there are fathers of all races and ethnicities who have a minimal presence in their children’s lives, “absentee” isn’t used to describing most of them. This racialized term uniquely targets Black fathers, inaccurately signaling that they willfully abandon their children. In reality, data from the CDC show that Black fathers are equally as likely to be involved in their children’s care as fathers of other races. There is, however, evidence that systemic racism has taken many Black fathers away from their families and communities through mass incarceration and early death. DOWNLOAD the REPORT using the QR Code.

Welcome to Sweet Magnolia

Its Summer! This Season of Pentecost is about Freedom! First, we acknowledge Pentecost, the day when we remember the coming of the Holy Spirit on the gathered disciples after the resurrection of Jesus marking the beginning of the Christian church. Next, we acknowledge Juneteenth, the day we remember the coming of federal troops with the word that the Civil War and Chattel Slavery were over almost two and a half years after the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Pride, Pentecost, and Juneteenth may seem like strange bedfellows, but they have more in common than meets the eye.

Each is disruptive—upsetting the status quo and the expectations that people had come to have about the way the world worked. The Spirit caused an outpouring of praise in numerous languages and broke down the barriers that separated people—barriers of race, national origin, language, and faith.

SCHOLAR IN FOCUS | James Hal Cone (August 5, 1938 - April 28, 2018) was an American theologian, best known for his advocacy of black theology and black liberation theology. His 1969 book Black Theology and Black Power provided a new way to comprehensively define the distinctiveness of theology in the black church. Cone's work was influential from the time of the book's publication, and his work remains influential today. His work has been both used and critiqued inside and outside the African-American theological community. He was the Charles Augustus Briggs Distinguished Professor of Systematic Theology at Columbia University-affiliated Union Theological Seminary until his death.

Lesson 11: A Life of Hope and Peace from Isaiah 65:17-25. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, the lion shall eat straw like the ox; but the serpent—its food shall be dust! They shall not hurt or destroy on all my holy mountain, says the LORD. Isaiah 65:25 (NRSV)

BENEDICTION

As you enter a new week, may you experience God's presence. May you feel God pouring out the Holy Spirit over your heads and your thoughts and the words of your lips, over your hearts and your feelings and emotions and your compassion for all others, and over your hands and your feet as you put into action all that God commands you.

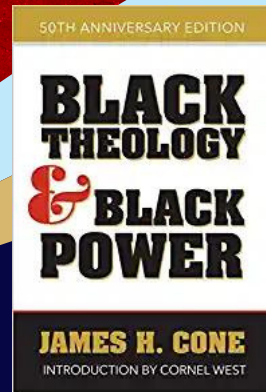

Lectionary: Genesis 12:1-9 and Psalm 33:1-12 • Hosea 5:15-6:6 and Psalm 50:7-15 • Romans 4:13-25 • Matthew 9:9-13, 18-26

GYE NYAME means "except for God" This symbolizes the Supremacy of God.

"In the act of worship itself, the experience of liberation becomes a constituent of the community's being . . . It is the power of God's Spirit invading the lives of the people, "building them up where they are torn down and propping them up on every leaning side".

JAMES CONE

Pride, too, is disruptive; it breaks down the walls that some people seek to erect to mark who is in and who is out. Pride says that everyone, without exception, is made in the image of God and belongs in the circle of love and grace.

Juneteenth is so disruptive that it's not clear how those with a vested interest in the status quo will deal with the contradictions the day presents. The one thing that is clear is where the spirit of the Lord is there is FREEDOM!

This Church's theological foundation is grounded in Liberation. Specifically, as carry out the Great Commission we are compelled to liberate people from the multiple forms of political, social, economic, and religious subjugation that contradict the biblical mandates and the abundant life promised through Jesus Christ.

ADINKRAHENE is the King of the Adinkra symbols meaning Authority

About this Sunday

GRADUATE RECOGNITION SUNDAY

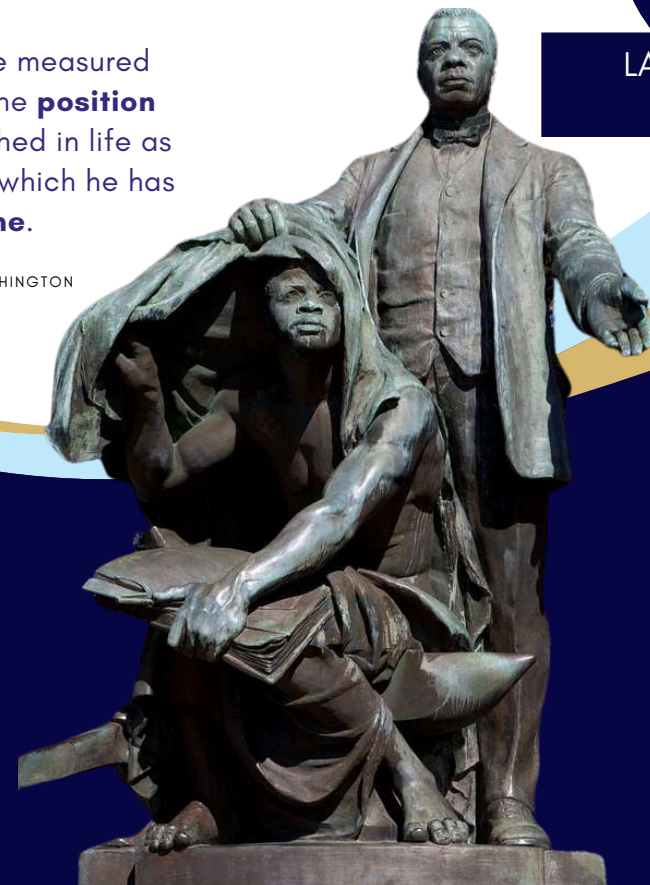

Today, we recognize the Graduating Class of 2023. Education is a critically important value to this Church. Why? Education has been fundamental to the lifting of our people. That lifting is reflected on the program's back cover in the monument known as Lifting the Veil of Ignorance located on the campus of Tuskegee University. A replica sits in Atlanta at Booker. T. Washington High School.

The original was unveiled and dedicated 100 years ago as a tribute to the founder of Tuskegee University, Booker T. Washington. The state of Black people is symbolized by the slave, and Washington pointing the way to progress and a better life through education and industry.

May the Spirit of the Living God continues to breathe fresh upon the graduates to strengthen the resolve to lift!

Success is to be measured not so much by the position that one has reached in life as by the obstacles which he has overcome.
